Dear Jale,

I am sending you a formal letter to invite you to be the guest of the University of Rhode Island and the Rhode Island Society of the American Institute of Archaeology as a speaker here in February. We would like to take advantage of your being in Princeton, which is only about five hours train ride from Rhode Island. The first three weeks in February are good for us; perhaps you would like to specify one or two dates which would be convenient for you. We would like to have you come to the University of Rhode Island to speak on Pamphylia (or any other topic which would please you); your audience would include members of the Society as well as faculty and students from the University and from Brown University in Providence. We would pay your expenses and an honorarium, but in order to guarantee that we have sufficient funds, we must begin to raise the money now. For this reason, I must ask you for a response as soon as possible, even though I know that will be difficult for you since you can hardly have much information about your Princeton schedule yet. If you could let me know soon whether you can come, I can raise the necessary funds and we can specify the date in February later.

I do hope that you can come to Rhode Island this winter; I am really looking forward to seeing you either here or in Princeton. I hope your work is going well and that life is neither too hectic nor too dangerous in Turkey these days. I am thinking of you fondly.

Best,

Natalie
